WAR DEPARTMENT.

Downing-Street, September 25, 1813.

A DISPATCH, of which the following is a copy, has this day been received from Major Macdonald.

Kaliski, Dantzig-Bay, September 7;

MY LORD, 1813.

I HAVE the honour to inform your Lordship, that on the morning of the 29th ultimo, the Russian and French outposts having a trifling affair at the village of Langefuhr, towards evening the enemy came out in force, attacked and cannonaded the whole line. The advanced posts were at first driven in, but, being reinforced, soon recovered their ground. In this affair the enemy's loss may be estimated at four hundred—that of the allies at three hundred men.

It being deemed necessary to obtain possession of the village of Langefuhr, situated on the high road from Dantzig to Berlin, about a mile from Dantzig, and a thousand yards from the fort called the Hagelsberg, on the 2d instant, at five P. M. the allied troops moved in three columns to the attack. The right, consisting of two regiments of infantry, and a body of Cossacks, were to obtain possession of a hill opposite to and commanding the village, while the centre, consisting of infantry, supported by cavalry, attacked the village; and the left, also composed of infantry and cavalry, were to advance through a plain to the left of the village, to drive the enemy from a mill, in which he was entrenched.

I have the pleasure to inform your Lordship, that the different attacks were made in a most gallant stile, the enemy being completely surprised and driven from the whole of these posts. The enemy's loss on this occasion amounts to one thousand, seven officers and two hundred and fifty men of which were made prisoners. That of the allies, in all, three hundred killed and wounded.

I have the honour to be, &c.

(Signed) ALEX. MACDONALD,
Major Royal Horse Artillery.

To Earl Bathurst, &c. &c. &c.

WAR DEPARTMENT.

Downing-Street, September 25, 1813.

DISPATCHES, of which the following are extracts, have been received from Lieutenant-General Count Walmoden by Earl Bathurst, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State.

Head-Quarters, Lubbeow, August 24, 1813.

ON the 17th August Marshal Davoust put himself in motion, and, penetrating the line of neutrality, attacked our advanced posts on the Stecknitz. He was employed for two days to drive them from this small river, near Buchen and Lauenburg, during which time he evacuated Lubeck, and, with a few thousand men, made at the same time a demonstration upon Möllen. The next day, 18th August, collecting his force, he moved slowly forward in two columns, the one directing its march upon Lauenburgh and Bötzenburg, the other upon Bächen. After all observations we could not estimate these columns less than from twelve to fourteen thousand men, and I was informed that five thousand remained in camp near Schwartzenbeck. The advance of the enemy was so cautious, that they hardly gained one German mile in a day. In this manner he arrived, on the 21st, in the vicinity of Vellahn, two miles from Hagenow, where I had assembled the whole of my cavalry, and the one half of my infantry, with the intention of attacking, with superior force, one of the enemy's columns, should a favourable opportunity offer itself. In the meantime I engaged the enemy at Vellahn, in order to induce him to shew his force—this had the desired effect, and he appeared to have about twenty thousand men, as nearly as I could observe. The loss was on both sides some hundreds of men, and the affair having continued till night, both parties remained in their position. The next day, 22d August, not wishing to engage in a decisive action, I moved to Hagenow, and from thence, the following day, to the plain of Kraack, between Hagenow and Neustadt, leaving the advanced guard at the former place, in case the enemy should advance, that I might be enabled to judge of his strength, having determined not to retreat except before much superior force. In the meantime General Vegesack, commanding the Swedish troops, not having been attacked, had made a demonstration upon Möllen, on the 21st August, with twelve hundred men. On the 23d, I learnt that the enemy, who on the 22d had not pressed much towards Hagenow, was moving upon Schwerin, having left the environs of Hagenow and Cammin. Whilst I remained in my position at Kraack, I gave orders to General Vegesack to gain one day's march upon the enemy, to be before him in case he should move from Schwerin to Gustrow and Rostock. To-day, the 24th, it is reported to me that the enemy has left Wittenburg, and that he is moving with his whole force upon Schwerin. I conclude, therefore, that his intention is to march to Swedish Pomerania, which would decide us to follow him by cutting him off from his communication from Hamburg, by constantly engaging and harassing his rear guard. The enemy's march appears to me to be very hazardous; it is true that his force might decide much, but however superior he may be in point of numbers, I flatter myself that, in the position which I have occupied, I shall find the surest means to resist him as long as possible in preventing him from gaining his object, which must have failed had I risked a decisive action with a corps so inferior in numbers as mine. In fact, the enemy would have, in less than eight days, made a conquest of the two duchies of Mecklenburgh, after we should have lost a battle, or after a retreat, which we should have been forced to make to avoid an engagement.

In case the enemy's intention should not be directed upon Rostock, and that he only means to turn my right; I hope to give him a good deal to do in the intersected country of Mecklenburgh, where I shall look for a favourable opportunity to defeat him, or, by manouevring, force him to retreat. I shall feel highly flattered, if the measures which I have taken, and of which I have given your Lordship a detailed account, should meet the approbation of His Royal Highness the Prince Regent.

Head Quarters, Grabau, August 26, 1813.

I BEG leave to refer your Lordship to my last statement, and to inform your Lordship, that having been ordered yesterday by the Prince Royal of Sweden, to join his army, with the troops here under my command; I went to Grabau for the purpose of marching to this destination.

I am happy to receive to-day the accompanying bulletin, announcing the victory which the army under the command of His Royal Highness gained over the enemy.* It is in consequence of this advantage, that I have been countermanded in the forementioned march, and that instead of joining the Prince Royal, I am directed to remain with my troops in Mecklenburgh, for the purpose of defending this country against the enemy.

* The enclosure here alluded to has already been published.

Head Quarters, Schwerin, September 4, 1813.

THE Prince Royal of Sweden, having countermanded the order which he gave me to join him, charged me with the defence of Mecklenburgh. In consequence of which, after having allowed my troops time to concentrate, I marched the day before yesterday on Crivitz and the neighbourhood, in order that I might effect a junction with the Swedish force which covered Rostock, which was under the command of General Vegesack. It was my intention by thus gaining one or two marches upon the enemy, and masking my movement by the advanced guard of General Tettenborn, whom I left before Schwerin, and who had kept the enemy in continual alarm, to fall with a superiority on General Loison, who was detached from Marshal Davoust, at Wismar. On my march I received the information, that the enemy (whose force consisted of eighteen thousand French, twelve thousand Danes, and one hundred pieces of cannon) had, notwithstanding his confirmed superiority, suddenly retired from Schwerin during the night of the 2d instant; by forced marches he reached Ratzeburg and Lubeck, and judging from the intelligence which I have received from all quarters. I can have no doubt that his intention is to join the grand French army, and to move either against the right or the left of the Prince Royal of Sweden, or upon the right or the left of the grand army of the allies on the left bank of the Elbe. I am confirmed in this opinion by the separation of the Danish and French troops, the latter of which have moved upon Ratzeburg, and then upon Lubeck; under this impression I shall press the Duke as soon as the Germans shall have passed the Steignitz, and I shall be certain of his intentions. The news which I have just received from the headquarters of the Prince Royal of Sweden, confirm me in the idea, that Marshal Davoust is marching to the assistance of the grand French army.

The position which the troops under my orders have occupied, has not only prevented the enemy from effecting the conquest of Mecklenburgh, but has rendered it impossible for him to attack us, and, far from having obtained the least advantage, he has been daily harassed and engaged on all sides with our light troops, and has suffered a loss of several hundred prisoners. On his retreat to Schonberg and Ratzeburg, we have taken more than five hundred.

I hope by passing the Elbe at Domitz, either to arrest the march of Marshal Davoust, or to find an opportunity of attacking him with advantage.

BANKERS' LICENCES.
 Stamp-Office, London, September 1st 1813.

Notice is hereby given, that by the Stamp Act, 48 Geo. 3, c. 149, all licences granted to Bankers or others, to issue promissory notes, payable to the bearer on demand, and allowed to be re-issued, will expire on the 10th of October next, and that they must be renewed within one month from that day, or penalties will be incurred.
 That a separate licence must be taken out for every place where the notes shall be issued, unless the persons to be licensed had issued their notes at several places before the 2d July 1768, and originally obtained one licence for all such places; in which case only, they will be again included in one licence.
 That every licence must specify the names and places of abode of the persons to be licensed, and the name of the place or places where, and the name of the bank, firm, or title, under which the notes are to be issued; and licences to persons in partnership must specify the names, and places of abode, of all the persons concerned in the partnership, whether all their names appear in the note or not, and in default thereof the licences will be void. With these particulars, a specimen of the notes must also be left at this Office, by persons applying for such licences.

That a penalty of £100 for every offence, is imposed on the issuing of promissory notes, of the description aforesaid, without a licence, or at any other place, or under any other firm or title, than is specified in the licence; and a penalty of £50 for every offence, is imposed on the issuing of promissory notes, of any description, or bills of exchange, not duly stamped, and on the re-issuing of promissory notes, not allowed to be re-issued, as well as on the re-issuing of notes, allowed to be re-issued, after the period fixed for that purpose.

That by the above-mentioned Act, promissory notes for more than £2 2s. and not exceeding £100, cannot at present be re-issued after three years from the date thereof; and from the 10th October next, the period allowed for the re-issuing of smaller notes, in England, is also limited by an Act of the last session of Parliament, to three years from the date thereof.

The Commissioners of Stamps having had occasion to prosecute several country Bankers, for the penalties incurred by their disregard of the provisions of the first-mentioned Act, this notice is given that all persons concerned may in future conform to the law, and avoid the penalties for which they will otherwise be prosecuted; and that persons, applying for licences, may come prepared with all the requisite particulars to be inserted therein, without which the licences cannot be filled up, so as to protect the parties against penalties.
