Whitehall, February 26, 1901.

THE following Address was presented to His Majesty at Marlborough House on the 23rd instant :—

To His Most Excellent Majesty King Edward VII.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of the University of Oxford, desire to approach Your Majesty in this moment of national mourning with the respectful assurance of our profound sympathy with Your poignant sorrow at the death of Your august Mother, our beloved Queen. The history of the world records no such universal expression of loyalty, reverence, and love, spontaneously evoked by a pure and noble life, which has taught every subject of Queen Victoria in Great Britain, and in that vast Empire which owned Her sway, to recognize and admire Her wisdom and patriotism as Monarch ; Her tenderness and devotion as Mother of Her people. Nor is there any nation in the world that has failed to bear generous witness to Her public and private virtues. Her beneficent reign—the longest and the best in English annals—will be enshrined among Her people's most cherished memories ; and its abiding influence will be the loftiest inspiration for Her successors. The death of this great Lady has touched every heart with so deep a sense of personal bereavement that we are emboldened to claim a share in that burden of sorrow which has fallen with overwhelming weight upon Your Majesty ; and we dare to hope that the universal sympathy of Your faithful subjects may bring some comfort to You in Your affliction.

But, Sire, this ancient University has another and happier duty to perform, and that is to hail with joy and confidence the accession to the Throne of a King whose chosen title recalls a glorious past, and whose youth and manhood have been associated with those great and worthy parents to whose noble example Your Majesty has already made such touching reference. And we are assured, Sire, that You will deign to recall the close connexion between Yourself and this loyal University, the happy years that You spent among us as a student, the loving welcome with which Oxford greeted You and Your Bride, who will command from us as Your gracious Queen the same chivalrous devotion that attached to Her as Princess of Wales. We tender to You to-day, Sire, Our hearty greeting as Our King ; and Our earnest prayer is that Almighty God will grant Your Majesty a long and happy reign in prosperity and peace ; that Your Throne may stand fast in the love of Your people ; and that every blessing may rest upon Yourself and Your Royal House.

Given in our House of Convocation, under Our Common Seal, this 12th day of February, in the year of our Lord 1901.

To which Address His Majesty was pleased to return the following gracious Answer :—

"I AM pleased to receive the dutiful Address which you present to Me in accordance with the ancient privilege merited by your traditional loyalty.

"The expression of your sympathy with My grief, and your appreciation of the many virtues, private and public, of My beloved Mother, and of the beneficence of Her long and glorious reign, touch Me deeply, and excite My warmest gratitude.

"Your reference to the time I spent at your University as a student recalls to My mind a period of My life which I shall ever look back upon with great pleasure and satisfaction, and I cannot forget the hearty welcome accorded in your famous city to Queen Alexandra and Myself when We were present at Commemoration in the early days of Our married life.

"I highly value the assurance of your affectionate loyalty to Our Throne and Person, and join fervently in your aspirations that My reign may be happy, peaceful, and blessed by the growing prosperity of My people.

"It will be My constant desire and endeavour to uphold and promote the well-being of those institutions in the country which have conferred, as your ancient University has done, great and lasting benefits—educational, social, and religious—upon mankind."

Whitehall, February 26, 1901.

THE following Address was presented to His Majesty at Marlborough House on the 23rd instant :—

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of the University of Cambridge.

May it please Your Majesty,

WE, Your Majesty's most dutiful subjects, the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of the University of Cambridge, humbly approach Your Royal presence to offer the expression of Our deep sympathy with the great sorrow which has befallen Your Majesty and the British Empire. In common with all Our fellow subjects We mourn the beloved Queen whose lofty example of devotion to duty and whose great qualities of character and heart had won for Her in a supreme degree the universal reverence and affection of Her people. To the personal influence of the Sovereign it was largely due that the changes, political and social, which occurred under Her reign were effected in tranquility, and that the progressive expansion of Her dominions was not accompanied by any weakening of unity. Her profound knowledge of affairs, Her singular sagacity in difficult questions of government and legislation, the wonderful sureness and delicacy of Her judgment have constantly been attested by the statesmen who were called to Her counsels. They alone could measure the whole extent of our debt to Her personal care and wisdom. But all can estimate the vast accession of strength which the Nation derived from the devotion which She inspired—a devotion which was the fairest pillar of our State and the dearest bond of a world-wide Empire. By the virtues and the graces of Her own high nature the Queen elevated Her people. While she was the ideal of a constitutional ruler, She was also a pattern of pure and generous womanhood, one whose simple charm came home to the humblest, touching them with a sense of human kinship in the deepest needs of human life. Her reign has been an age in which every kind of good work or worthy effort has been fostered by the favour of the Sovereign, and has been lifted to a higher level by such encouragement as only the Sovereign could bestow. With deep thankfulness we recognize that this great Reign, which marks an era for our Country, has been the most beneficent in its annals, and in the hour of bereavement we reverently acknowledge those incalculable blessings to the Empire and to mankind which will be associated for all time to come with the name and the memory of Queen Victoria.

In offering to Your Majesty the humble expression of our condolence on this solemn occasion, we beg leave also to tender our respectful congratulations on Your Majesty's accession to the Throne of Your ancestors, and to assure You of our loyal attachment to Your Majesty's Person. The heartfelt good wishes which greet the commencement of Your Majesty's reign are nowhere more earnest than in the ancient University of which Your Majesty is a member, over which the illustrious Prince, Your Majesty's father, once presided, and which is bound by so many ties of affection, gratitude, and sympathy to Your Majesty and Your Royal House. We humbly pray that under the blessing of Divine Providence Your Gracious Majesty may long reign in the hearts of a free, contented, and united people whose love is the heritage of Your Throne; and that amidst the duties and cares of Your exalted station Your Majesty and Your august Consort may be attended with every happiness which the devotion of Your subjects could desire.

To which Address His Majesty was pleased to return the following gracious Answer:—

"I GLADLY receive you here to-day, in accordance with your ancient privilege, which records so honourably the traditional loyalty of the University of Cambridge to the Throne.

"The words in which you bear testimony to the great qualities of character and heart of My dear Mother, the late Queen, and to Her powerful example and influence for good are an eloquent expression of thoughts which have found universal utterance to the very great consolation of Myself and the members of My family, and I thank you for them.

"I thank you also most heartily for your congratulations, and for your good wishes for Myself and My Consort, and I confidently trust that the University of Cambridge, of which I am proud to be a member, will continue to send forth into the world men endowed with the gift of leading in all labours that have for their end the service of God, the maintenance and development of the Empire, and the welfare of humanity at large."

Whitehall, February 26, 1901.

THE following Address was presented to His Majesty at Marlborough House on the 23rd instant:—

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

The Humble Address of the President, Council, and Fellows of the Royal Society for Promoting Natural Knowledge.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, Your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects the President, Council, and Fellows of the Royal Society of London for Promoting Natural Knowledge, humbly beg leave to offer our deepest and most heartfelt sympathy with Your Majesty in the great sorrow which has befallen You in the death of Your beloved Mother, our late Sovereign Lady the Queen. Your Majesty's loss is our loss also: a loss not only to ourselves, not only to all Your Majesty's subjects throughout the Empire, but to the whole world. During Your beloved Mother's wise and beneficent reign under Her thoughtful fostering care that natural knowledge which the Society was founded by one of Your Ancestors to promote has been promoted to an extent, and in ways, never known before; and we feel sure that not in our time only but in the years to come, to the story of the advance of science in the past century will be most closely linked the memory of the goodness, the wisdom, the peerless worth of the august and beloved Lady, whose death has now plunged us into the deepest grief.

While thus uttering words of sorrow, we ask leave, Sire, at the same time, to lay at Your Majesty's feet our unfeigned and heartfelt congratulation upon Your Majesty's accession to the Throne of Your ancestors to reign over a people to whom happily Your Majesty is no stranger, but who have, by many experiences, learnt to recognize Your great worth, and have been led to the sure hope that under Your gracious rule the Nation will continue to hold the proud position which it has gained under the guidance of Your beloved Mother.

That Your Majesty's reign may be long, happy, and glorious, and that You may rule in the hearts as well over the persons of a loving, dutiful, and grateful people is the earnest wish and ardent prayer of Your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, the President, Council, and Fellows of the Royal Society of London.

William Huggins,
President, Royal Society.

To which Address His Majesty was pleased to return the following gracious Answer:—

"I AM much gratified by the warm expression of your loyalty and affection, of your profound sympathy with Our present grief, and of your loving appreciation of the goodness and great qualities of My dearly beloved Mother.

"I thank you for your dutiful good wishes, and I share your hope that My reign also may be blessed by a continuous growth of My people in enlightenment, refinement, and power for good.

"The intellectual attainments and energies which your Society so conspicuously represents are among the most precious possessions of the nation as aids in securing these high ends, and I remember with gratification the close connexion of the Society with its Royal founder and My other predecessors on this Throne, and the fact that I am a Fellow, as was also My dear Father.

"You may feel assured of my constant interest in and protection of your work: and in token of My good will I shall be pleased to inscribe My name as patron in the charter book."

Scottish Office, Whitehall, February 25, 1901.

THE following Address was presented to His Majesty at St. James's Palace on the 23rd instant:—

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

THE Loyal and Dutiful Address of the Commission of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland.

May it please Your Majesty,

WE, Your Majesty's most Loyal and Dutiful Subjects, the Ministers and Elders of the Church of Scotland, met in the Commission of the General Assembly, desire to take the earliest opportunity of humbly offering the tribute of our sincere condolence to Your Majesty and the Royal Family on the Death of our late Revered and Beloved Sovereign of Blessed and Glorious Memory, and our cordial congratulations on Your Majesty's Accession to the Throne of Your Ancestors.

We recall the glorious reign of the departed Sovereign with profound thankfulness to Almighty God for all the signal blessings which we so long enjoyed under Her wise and beneficent rule. We remember with heartfelt gratitude the many virtues which adorned Her beautiful and illustrious life, drawing towards Her in a degree pre-eminent and unexampled the devotion and affection of Her subjects, and the unstinted admiration of the world. The recollection of Her great goodness will never fade from the memory of living men, or from the pages of British history. Her steadfast faith in God, Her high sense of duty, Her unfailing sympathy with the joys and sorrows of Her people, Her unwearied efforts to promote the happiness and well-being of all classes, and the manifold influences of Her splendid example which did so much to elevate and purify the life of the nation, have made Her reign the most memorable, as it has been the longest, in the annals of the Empire.

We rejoice to find in Your Majesty's gracious declaration the expression of Your Majesty's earnest purpose and desire to follow the footsteps of our late Sovereign, by maintaining the same principles of constitutional government, by seeking to advance the good and improvement of the people, and by the manifestation of those Christian virtues which impart the brightest lustre to the Crown.

It has been most pleasing to us to learn how readily the constitutional pledge required by the Act of Union was proffered by Your Majesty at Your first Council, to maintain and preserve inviolably the settlement of the true Protestant religion with the government, worship, discipline, rights, and privileges of the Church of Scotland as established by law.

Firmly relying as we do on the fulfilment of this solemn vow, and remembering with gratitude to God how long the protection of our civil and religious liberties has been identified with the Royal House, as also the affectionate regard in which Her late Majesty ever held the National Church established in Her ancient Kingdom of Scotland, and being fully persuaded that the love of righteousness and the fear of God pervading all classes of the people, are the best safeguard of the stability of the Throne, and of the peace and prosperity of the Kingdom, we esteem it a sacred duty to encourage and exhort the people under our charge to maintain inviolate their loyalty to Your Majesty's Person and Government, and to render that willing obedience to the laws which the precepts of the Gospel require not only for wrath but for conscience sake.

That He who is King of kings and Lord of lords, in whose hands it is to make great, may abundantly bless Your Majesty and Your august and gracious Consort with the treasures of His grace and wisdom, that He may establish Your Throne in righteousness, that the power of the Most High may sustain You amidst all the labours and cares of Your exalted station, that You may long reign in the heart of a free, loyal, and religious people, and that after a prosperous and glorious reign on earth You may be called to an inheritance incorruptible and unfading in that Kingdom which cannot be moved, is the heart's desire and prayer of

May it please Your Majesty, Your Majesty's most faithful, most loyal, and most obedient subjects, the Ministers and Elders of this Commission of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland.

Signed in our name, in our presence, and by our appointment, by

Norman Macleod, D.D., Moderator.

Edinburgh, the 30th day of January, 1901.

To which Address His Majesty was pleased to return the following gracious Answer:—

"IT is with sincere gratification that I receive the loyal and dutiful Address of the Commission of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland.

"I thank you with all My heart, for your very touching reference to the irreparable loss which the Nation has sustained by the death of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, My revered Mother, whose memory will, I feel sure, for ever dwell in the loving hearts of Her people.

"I also thank you for your warm congratulations on My accession to the Throne, and the valued expressions of goodwill towards Myself and the Queen.

"You may securely rely upon the fulfilment of the sacred obligation under which I bound Myself on My accession, to maintain inviolate the rights and privileges of the Church of Scotland.

"I also firmly rely on the loyalty and attachment of her Ministers and Elders to My Throne and Person, and I pray that, under the blessing of Almighty God, the Church of Scotland may long continue, by the promotion of true religion and virtue, to exercise its powerful influence for good amongst My faithful and beloved subjects of Scotland."

Scottish Office, Whitehall, February 25, 1901.

THE following Address was presented to His Majesty at St. James's Palace on the 23rd instant :—

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

May it please Your Majesty,

WE, the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Council of the City of Edinburgh, in public meeting assembled, beg to offer Your Majesty our humble congratulations on Your Accession to the Throne of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and to express the hope that Your Royal Consort and Yourself will be long spared to reign over Your loyal subjects in all parts of Your Majesty's dominions.

As dutiful subjects, we beg also respectfully to assure Your Majesty of our devotion to Your Person, Throne, and Government.

The invaluable services and assistance Your Majesty rendered Your Royal Mother, our beloved Queen Victoria, in the discharge of Her high and responsible duties, the love and affection You have always given to Her Majesty and the country, and the readiness with which, as Her Apparent, You have at all times given Your time and Royal influence to all matters affecting the public weal, are an assurance to us that You will, as Sovereign, be a worthy successor to Queen Victoria.

With much satisfaction we recall on this auspicious occasion the fact that, at our Royal High School, You received a part of Your education, that on many public occasions our ancient city of Edinburgh had the honour of Your Noble and Illustrious services, and specially that we had the high privilege in the year 1899 of admitting You a Burgess and Guild Brother of the City.

We beg to assure Your Majesty of the loyalty and fidelity of Your subjects in the capital of Scotland.

"My loyal citizens of Edinburgh have ever been conspicuous for their zeal and energy in furthering every movement that is calculated to tend to the prosperity and well-being of this Country, and I confidently feel that in My earnest determination to maintain the rights and privileges of all classes of My subjects, and to promote the highest interests of My Empire, I shall have their loyal and un-failing co-operation."
