Cautionary Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given, that from about the middle of May to the end of August, 1901, one of His Majesty's ships will be employed in observing the direction and rate of the tidal streams in the vicinity of the Channel Islands.

For this purpose it will be necessary for the vessel to anchor in various positions around the islands, and whilst she is at anchor she will show the signal displayed by a wreck-marking vessel, viz.: two balls vertically at one end of a yard and one ball at the other end, in order to prevent her being mistaken, in the strong tide-way, for a vessel under way.

Should a fog come on while she is at anchor in position, the usual fog signal for a vessel at anchor, viz.: a bell rung rapidly every minute will be given, and if in the line of traffic she will in addition fire a gun every ten minutes.

Mariners are warned that they should not approach this vessel nearer than necessary for the safety of navigation whilst she is employed in this investigation, which is undertaken for the general benefit of seamen.

By command of their Lordships,
W. J. L. Wharton, Hydrographer.
