The Skaw—Wind and Storm Signal Station.

The Danish Government has given notice that, on 1st January, 1905, a wind semaphore and storm signal station will be established at the Skaw  $1\frac{1}{2}$  cables N.N.W. from the lighthouse. The semaphore consists of a lattice-work structure 96 feet high, with a horizontal yard pointing north and south. The yard is supported on each side, half way from its centre to the end, by smaller lattice-work structures; and at the junction of the smaller structures with the yard there is a circle with a pointer to indicate the direction of the wind. On each side of the principal mast above the yard are six arms to indicate the force of the wind. On the north side of the mast above the yard an  $\text{H}$  is placed to indicate that the signals made on that side represent the conditions of the weather at Hanstholm; and on the south side an  $\text{A}$  to indicate that the signals made on that side will represent the conditions of the weather at Anholt. On the north yard arm end is placed an  $\emptyset$ , and on the south a  $\nabla$  to assist in reading the signals when seen from behind.  $\emptyset$  signifying Øst or East, and  $\nabla$  signifying Vest or West.

Wind Signals.

The direction of the wind at Hanstholm and Anholt are indicated by the direction of the pointers in the circles on the yard arms, the tops of the circle representing the north point of the compass, and the  $\emptyset$  and  $\nabla$  on the end yard the east and west points respectively.

The force of the wind at either station is represented by the arms above the yard, each arm placed horizontally representing a force of two of the Beaufort scale. A calm is represented by the pointer and all the arms being turned downwards. If no information can be given the upper arm will be placed at an angle of  $45^{\circ}$  above the horizontal.

Storm Signals.

The storm signals are made from the yard arms of the semaphore yard, as follows:—

One black ball signifies:—Weather disturbed so that a storm may be expected.

One black cone, point upwards:—Storm from north-west.

One black cone, point downwards:—Storm from south-west.

Two black cones, points upwards:—Storm from north-east.

Two black cones, points downwards:—Storm from south-east.

Under the other yard arm the following may be hoisted:—

One red flag signifies:—Wind veering to the right.

Two red flags signifies:—Wind backing to the left.

By night these signals may be replaced by red lights, which will be obscured from the bearing of  $S. 22^{\circ} W.$ , through south, to  $S. 46^{\circ} E.$ , to avoid confusion with the auxiliary light on the north side of the lighthouse.

Approximate position, lat.  $57^{\circ} 44\frac{1}{2}'$  N., long.  $10^{\circ} 38\frac{1}{2}'$  E.
