War Office,

5th May, 1916.

It has come to the knowledge of the Army Council that, notwithstanding the notice that was issued by the Home Office in May, 1915, firms and individuals in the United Kingdom are still receiving from Neutral countries requests to act as intermediaries or agents for the receipt and re-transmission to other Neutrals of postal and cable correspondence.

In the case of postal correspondence, the question of misleading the censors as to who are the actual parties to the correspondence does not arise, since the letters themselves are self-explanatory in that respect, but in the case of cables the practice is often very misleading.

In both cases the re-transmission of correspondence by an intermediary is dangerous to the intermediary himself, since, as a rule, he has little or no knowledge of the transaction he is indirectly assisting to carry out, and may, unknowingly, become implicated in enemy trade or in the transmission of undesirable information, thereby causing his own legitimate correspondence to be regarded with suspicion.

All persons in the United Kingdom are therefore hereby warned to refuse to act as intermediaries for the re-transmission of telegraphic or postal correspondence, and all such intermediary correspondence will be specially liable to detention.
